Circular to All Drivers: Traffic Fines on Pool Trucks and the Annual Driving Licence Check

Phu Rua Line Haulage Co., Ltd., Loei Depot · Circular DR-2026-09 · Issued 18 September 2026 · Effective 1 November 2026

To: All employed drivers, relief drivers and shift supervisors
From: Fleet Compliance Desk and Fleet Safety Office
Subject: New rules for handling traffic fines on company trucks, salary deductions, disputes, and the yearly driving licence check

1. Why this circular is issued

Phu Rua Line Haulage runs 64 pool trucks that are registered in the company's name and shared between drivers on a rotating roster. When a camera or roadside officer issues a fine, the notice comes to the company, not to the driver. Under the old system, notices were often found weeks later and the early-payment discount was lost. This circular replaces Circular DR-2025-11 in full from 1 November 2026. Fines dated before 1 November 2026 are still handled under DR-2025-11, even if the notice arrives later.

2. How a fine notice is handled at the depot

All fine notices, whether delivered by post, by e-mail or through the registered-owner portal, are sent to the Fleet Compliance Desk in Building B, Room 204 of the Loei depot. The desk is open Monday to Friday, 08:00 to 16:30.

1. The desk logs every notice within 2 working days of receipt.
2. The desk matches the offence time against the DriveLog trip records and the key-cabinet sign-out sheet to identify who was driving.
3. The identified driver receives a fine message in the DriveLog app with a photo of the notice and the amount due.
4. The driver must open the message and either accept it or start a dispute (Section 5) within 3 working days of the message being sent.
5. The desk then nominates the driver to the issuing authority as the person in charge of the vehicle. Nomination must reach the authority within 7 days of the notice date, so the 3-day window cannot be extended.

If a driver does not respond within 3 working days, the fine is treated as accepted and the nomination is sent. A driver on approved leave has 3 working days from the first day back at work.

Note. If DriveLog and the key sheet disagree about who was driving, the key sheet signature is treated as the deciding record. Drivers who hand a truck to a colleague mid-route must record the handover in DriveLog with the odometer reading; otherwise the driver who signed the key out remains responsible.

3. Who pays which fine

The general rule is that the driver pays for offences that depend on how the truck was driven, and the company pays for offences that depend on the condition, paperwork or loading of the truck when these were outside the driver's control.

3.1 Fines paid by the driver

- Speeding, passing a red light and illegal U-turns.
- Using a hand-held phone and not wearing a seat belt.
- Parking or stopping offences outside a delivery address.
- Driving a truck into a time-restricted zone, such as the Loei town centre heavy-vehicle ban from 07:00 to 09:00, when the route sheet showed a different approach.

3.2 Fines paid by the company

- Expired vehicle tax, insurance or inspection certificate.
- Defects such as broken lights or worn tyres that the driver had reported in the DriveLog pre-trip check before the fine was issued.
- Parking offences at a customer's delivery address during the delivery window shown on the route sheet, when the customer had no loading bay available.
- Overweight fines where the truck was loaded by the warehouse team and the load sheet weight was within the legal limit.

> Note on overweight fines. Every truck leaving the Loei depot with a load above 12 tonnes must pass over the depot weighbridge, and the driver must attach the weighbridge ticket to the load sheet. If the driver leaves without a weighbridge ticket when one was required, an overweight fine for that trip is paid by the driver, even if the warehouse team did the loading. Loads of 12 tonnes or less do not need a ticket.

A defect that the driver noticed but did not report in the pre-trip check is treated as a driver fine.

4. Payment and salary deductions

The company pays every accepted fine to the issuing authority within the authority's early-payment period, so that the reduced amount applies. For driver fines, the driver is charged only the reduced amount that the company actually paid. A driver may choose to pay a driver fine directly instead, but must upload the receipt to DriveLog within 10 days of accepting the fine; if no receipt is uploaded by then, the company pays and the amount is deducted.

- Deduction method: deducted from the next monthly salary after payment.
- Monthly cap: no more than 1,500 baht is deducted in any one month. Any balance above the cap is carried forward to the following months until it is cleared. Under DR-2025-11 the cap was 2,500 baht; the lower cap applies to all deductions made from the November 2026 payroll onward, including balances carried over from earlier fines.
- Leaving the company: any outstanding balance is deducted in full from the final salary payment, without the monthly cap.

5. How to dispute a fine

A driver who believes that a fine was assigned to the wrong person, or that it should be paid by the company under Section 3.2, may dispute it. Disputes are decided by the Fleet Compliance Officer, Ms. Kanokwan Butsri.

1. In the DriveLog fine message, tap "Dispute" within the 3-working-day window in Section 2. A dispute raised after the window closes is not accepted.
2. Attach evidence, such as a handover record, a pre-trip defect report or dashcam footage. The dashcam file must be requested from the Fleet Safety Office within 48 hours of the offence, because footage is overwritten after 72 hours.
3. The Fleet Compliance Officer gives a written decision within 5 working days. While the dispute is open, no nomination is sent and no deduction is made.
4. If the dispute is rejected, the driver may ask the Fleet Safety Manager, Mr. Anucha Wongprasert, for a second review within 3 working days of the decision. His decision is final for the purposes of this circular.

6. The annual driving licence check

Every driver must hold a valid heavy-vehicle driving licence of the class required for the truck on the roster. Once a year, in the month of the driver's birthday, the driver must bring the original licence card to the Fleet Safety Office, Building B, Room 210, between 08:30 and 15:30 on a working day.

A driver who misses the check by the last working day of the birthday month is removed from the roster from the first day of the next month until the check is done. The removal is unpaid unless the driver was on approved leave for the whole birthday month.

6.1 Licence renewal

Drivers must renew their licence at least 30 days before it expires. The company grants one paid half-day for the renewal appointment and reimburses the renewal fee up to 650 baht when the receipt is submitted in DriveLog. A renewal done after the licence has expired is not reimbursed, and the paid half-day is not given.

After renewal, a driver who has only the receipt and has not yet received the new card may drive company trucks for up to 14 calendar days from the date on the receipt. From day 15, the driver is taken off the roster until the new card is shown to the Fleet Safety Office. No company truck may be driven on an expired licence under any circumstances.
